SIXTEENTH SCINTILLATING ISSUE

WHERE DEB CREATES CHANGE FOR THE BETTER?

Deb decides to start the year by making a few dietary changes. So Mark learns to embrace the culinary tastes of vegan “cheeze” and “chick’n”.

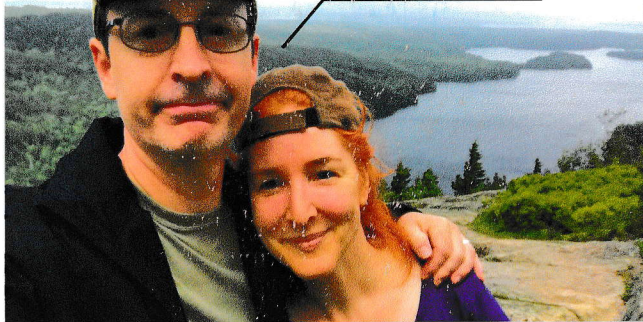

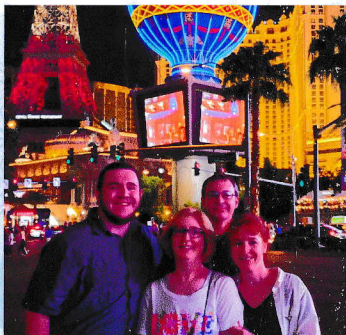

In April, Deb publishes her Nepal travel memoir, later becoming a #1 Amazon Bestselling Author in the Southeast Asian Travel Guide category when 70 or so people purchase the ebook during a 99c sale.

It took 30 years, but Deb finally secures a job in the environmental field ... a testament to never giving up on a dream. This means that Mark too has secured the same job, regularly helping with video projects and even designing an energy efficient LEGO house. Less than two weeks into the full time job, Deb decides she needs a break. Mark questions the quality of this break.

SO TELL ME AGAIN

ABOUT CAMPING ...?

September finds the S intrepid couple in Sin City celebrating Jay's 21st. Karen is the only slots winner but Mark and Deb score free upgrades to see 76-year-old Rod Stewart sing "If You Think I Sexy."

Mark and Deb travel on—hiking up a river in Zion, kayaking through Antelope Canyon, taking in the night sky in Monument Valley, then on to Arches, Canyonlands, Bryce, and Salt Lake City but in the end deciding, "There's no place like home."

*Deb and Mark
